

ABSTRACT

A flexi-rigid printed circuit board has a rigid area made up of inner layers of flexible copper and outer layers of rigid insulating material. The board includes an integral flexible heat sink area having springy edge regions of exposed flexible copper layers without outer layers of rigid insulating material, and a metal heat conducting body which is springily engaged for the rigid areas of the board.